Solution Manual-Chemical Engineering Thermodynamics

Thermodynamics is the branch of physics that has to do with heat and temperature and their relation to energy and work. The behavior of these quantities is governed by the four laws of thermodynamics, irrespective of the composition or specific properties of the material or system in question. The laws of thermodynamics are explained in terms of microscopic constituents by statistical mechanics.

Climate change is now a major concern. The polar ice caps are reported to be melting and sea levels are rising due to an increase in the average temperature of the Earth's atmosphere and oceans. Global warming is driven by increasing levels of tropospheric gases that contribute to the so-called greenhouse effect.

An acid dissociation constant, K_a , (also known as acidity constant, or acid-ionization constant) is a quantitative measure of the strength of an acid in solution. It is the equilibrium constant for a chemical reaction known as dissociation in the context of acid–base reactions. In aqueous solution, the equilibrium of acid dissociation can be written symbolically as:

Real-world manipulation of anions needs receptors to operate in solution. By combining experiment and theory, Flood and colleagues discovered a $1/r$ solvent dependence of solution-phase anion affinities. Surprisingly, electrostatics no longer dominates affinity in solutions of even moderate polarity. Their findings also enable accurate predictions of anion affinities across a wide range of ...

A radiant barrier is a shiny panel or flexible membrane used in construction. Although radiant barriers have no R-value, they can be used as part of a building assembly – for example, an assembly made up of a radiant barrier and an air space – to slow heat transfer.
